Join the ICWJ as we lift up the plight of San Diego Janitors who are struggling for a fair contract.

San Diego Janitors, majority of whom are immigrant women, struggle daily to make ends meet on poverty wages. They are most likely to suffer from wage theft and hazardous working conditions, and they are vulnerable to abuses on the job, including widespread sexual harassment and assault.

Help us bring these egregious conditions to light and call on management to do what is just.

The foot washing ritual, a part of Christian Holy Thursday liturgies, is a gesture of hospitality, service, and compassion—a very different vision than what our janitors are experiencing at the hands of their employers.

Join us as we call for justice during this Season of Liberation!
